LAST WEEK

LAST WEEK'S SPEAKER: BOB ZEHNDER Gave us a recap of his recent trip to Chamonix France where he hiked the Alps. Bob hiked for several days returning each afternoon to his hotel. He was prepared for cooler weather and told us he was somewhat over dressed, plus he got a bit dehydrated and very "exhausted" the first day. Bob hiked with an experienced group of men and women much younger than him. They were from Canada, Australia, and California. The pictures he showed us were spectacular. Among other things he saw a lot of hang gliders and paragliders. Chamonix is the "Death Sport Capital" of the world and many people die from their exotic sporting adventures of hang gliding, skiing off cliffs and hiking. Helicopter rescue is a daily happening, and the average time to get to a stranded hiker is about 10 minutes! His wife and friends were greatly relieved when he actually survived everything.
